

Reviewer's report

Title: Human resources for health at the district level in Indonesia

Version: 1 Date: 17 November 2008

Reviewer: Paul Garner

Reviewer's report:

This is an extremely interesting article and should be published. It's really helpful to have good reliable empirical data of this kind.

The discussion is interesting and helpful.

The only changes I would recommend are sharpening up the abstract. They should put in some data, such as the fact that 37% of doctors private sector is the most important source of employment. Remember this goes in to Medline and there are no headline statistics in there. In the abstract, I would shorten the conclusions (perhaps some of the information can go into background).

Level of interest: An article of importance in its field
